ABOUT

My professional career began in broadcasting where I spent my days with other creative people editing videos, creating news shows, running cameras and finally moving on to being a quality control technician. After broadcasting I moved on to a 13 year career with FedEx Express as a courier, dangerous goods specialist and a operations lead. A twist in life gave me the opportunity to learn an entirely new career in software development that I found through Nashville Software School. It's been a joy continuing my team oriented ways in a new passion and creating apps.
